

Anthony Panebianco, Chair

Anthony Panebianco grew up in New York and vacationed in the Cape with his family in Brewster every summer. Anthony was raised in a family of musicians and is a multi-instrumentalist himself. He is now a resident of Yarmouth Port, where he served as a member of the Yarmouth Planning Board for several years. Anthony also previously served on boards for EcoFire Box and Spring Forward Horse Rescue, a local 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation that was dedicated to rescuing miniature horses.

By day, he is a practicing attorney, representing businesses and artists alike. On the weekends, you can often find him cooking, kayaking on the bay or scooting around the Cape on his Vespa.

Anthony is a graduate of Colgate University and University at Buffalo School of Law.

Duke Bates

A native Oregonian, Duke began his financing education at 18 with US National Bank and the University of Oregon. By 1985 his undergraduate studies were completed where he then transferred his domestic and international business development career to Los Angeles and began working with a large British bank.

After 19 years of financial experience and a recent MBA degree, Duke relocated to Key West, Florida. He soon was recruited to begin a privately held savings bank, Key West Bank. As CFO the demands were many, but the rewards were great and soon the bank grew to 30 million in assets.

After seven successful years and a touch of island fever it had come time to move to the Northeast and begin taking advantage of the wide employment field. Currently working and living full time in Cotuit, Duke is enjoying the challenges of expanding La Mer Concierge customer base, while maintaining a strong financial footing.
